Putting Evidence Into Practice (PEP): What’s New in Skin Effects

Changes since prior topic update
Last topic update: May 10, 2017

One new intervention was reviewed:

- Epidermal growth factor

The team consensus was to categorize this as Effectiveness Not Established based on the available evidence.

The following intervention was categorized as Likely To Be Effective, which is consistent with prior reviews:

- Prophylactic systemic antibiotics

The following intervention was categorized as Not Recommended For Practice, which is consistent with prior reviews:

- Pyridoxine

The following interventions were categorized as Effectiveness Not Established, which is consistent with prior reviews:

- Systemic corticosteroids
- Regional cooling

Three interventions were categorized as Expert Opinion:

- Antipruritics for I-O related pruritis
- Topical steroids for low grade I-O induced skin toxicity
- Systemic steroids for high grade I-O induced skin toxicity – EXPERT OPINION